

Contents

Preface
BARBARA DANA	ix
Introduction
CINDY MACKENZIE	xiii
“The Might of Human love”: Emily Dickinson’s Letters of Healing
POLLY LONGSWORTH	1
From the Province of the Saved: Emily Dickinson and Healing
GREGORY ORR	11
“There came a Day at Summer’s full —”
ELLEN BACON	27
“This Consciousness that is aware”: The Consolation of Emily Dickinson’s Phenomenology
JOY LADIN	33
“If I can stop one Heart from breaking”
BRUCE BODE	44
“It ceased to hurt me”: Emily Dickinson’s Language of Consolation
CINDY MACKENZIE	47
Broken Silence: The Healing Power of Emily Dickinson’s Poetry
SUSAN HESS	60
Hope and the Flight of United Airlines 232, July 1989
MELL MCDONNELL	65
May the Circle Be Unbroken: Reading Emily Dickinson after 9/11
ELLEN LOUISE HART	69
Emily Dickinson: The Other That I Am
MARION WOODMAN	83
“Will there really be a ‘morning?’” A Lamp on the Journey through Pain
BARBARA DANA	91
“An Element of Blank”: On Pain and Experimentation
CYNTHIA HOGUE	107
Elements of Blank, Formal Feelings, and an Autobiography of Chronic Pain
MARTHA NELL SMITH	115

Life Portals
LINDA RICHARD	122
“A crescent still abides”: Emily Dickinson and the Work of Mourning
JOAN KIRKBY	129
“Myself — the Term between —”
ROLAND HAGENBÜCHLE	141
Contributors	145
Index to Poems Cited	148